After a few years painting watercolors, Lynn Slade discovered the rice paper/collage technique and has never looked back.

"My paintings are a combination of watercolor and handmade rice papers which are known as "Washi", which allows me to express all the aspects of a subject. I am drawn to bold, dramatic shapes and colors and I love the color intensity that the layering of papers and paint provides. Both the creation as well as the finished piece becomes a tactile experience as well as a visual one."

Valuable Values Workshop

Interesting value shapes in a painting are more important to the success of the painting than the color itself. Seeing these abstract values in your subject matter is one of the first and most difficult things for an artist to understand. Learn about the power of these valuable values, how to find them in our subject matter and connect them with transitional passages.

In addition, we'll learn the concept of 80/20 in a composition, how to find and make a focal point stand out and direct the viewer's eye to it. Understanding these design concepts can help take your paintings to the next level. The workshop will explore collage techniques using a variety of rice papers. Combining color and texture, we'll work toward creating a dramatic finished work.
